Before You Begin

This ritual is for you

TQH

Not the version of you that has it all together. Not the version that is strong and coping and fine.

The real you. The one who is tired some mornings. The one who is grieving something — even if you can't name exactly what. The one who is quietly, bravely becoming something new.

This morning practice takes just 10 minutes. It asks nothing of you except your presence. It combines breathwork, self-Havening touch, and gentle intention — to help you begin each day rooted in your own truth.

"The journey back to you is one of gentleness, honour and deep healing."

What You'll Need

- A quiet space — even just 10 minutes before anyone else wakes up
- Somewhere to sit comfortably — a chair, your bed, the floor

Optional: a candle, a cup of tea, your Quiet Holders oracle cards

Minute 1 — Arrive

Simply be here

TQH

Before you do anything — just sit.

Place both feet flat on the floor. Feel the ground beneath you. Place one hand on your heart.

Take three slow breaths — in through your nose, out through your mouth. Long, full, unhurried.

Ask yourself quietly:

"How am I really, this morning?"

Not how you should be. Not how you'll tell others you are. How are you, really? You don't need to answer out loud. Just notice. Just let yourself be known to yourself.

This simple breathwork pattern signals safety to your nervous system — telling your body that this day begins in calm, not chaos.

Box Breathing:

- Breathe IN for 4 counts
- HOLD for 4 counts
- Breathe OUT for 4 counts
- HOLD for 4 counts

Repeat this cycle 6-8 times.

As you breathe, imagine each exhale releasing what you carried yesterday. Each inhale bringing in something new — space, softness, possibility.

If your mind wanders — that's okay. Gently come back to the count.

Our bodies hold everything — the worries we fell asleep with, the grief that visits in dreams, the tension of a hundred small moments.

The Arm Strokes:

Using both palms, stroke slowly from your shoulders down to your elbows. Long, gentle, rhythmic strokes.

"I release what is not mine to carry today."

The Face Strokes:

Using your fingertips, stroke gently from the centre of your forehead out to your temples. Then from under your eyes across your cheekbones.

"I am safe. I am here. I am held."

The Hand Strokes:

Turn your palms upward. Stroke gently from knuckles to wrist on each hand.

"Today I choose gentleness — with myself, and with others."

Minute 7 — The Oracle Card

If you have your Quiet Holders Oracle Cards, hold the deck in both hands. Take a breath. Ask:

"What does my soul need to hear today?"

Draw one card. Read it slowly. Don't analyse — just receive.

If you don't have cards, open your journal and write the first word that comes to you. Just one word. That is enough.

Minutes 8-9 — The Intention

An intention is not a to-do list. It is a quality you want to carry through the day. Place your hand on your heart and complete one of these:

- "Today I choose to move through the world with ____ ." (gentleness / courage / presence)
- "Today I give myself permission to ____ ." (rest / feel / ask for help)
- "Today I am ____ ." (enough / healing / becoming / held)

Say it out loud if you can. There is power in hearing your own voice speak kindness to yourself.

Place both hands on your heart. Take three final breaths — slow, full, present.

Say quietly:

"I am not alone. I am held. I am becoming. And that is enough."

Then — gently, without rushing — begin your day.

On the Hard Mornings

Some mornings this ritual will feel beautiful. Other mornings you will feel nothing, or cry through it, or manage one minute before the day swallows you whole.

All of that is okay. The practice is not about feeling a certain way. It is about showing up for yourself — even imperfectly.

A one-minute version:

On the mornings when 10 minutes is impossible — one hand on your heart, three breaths, and:

"I am here. I am held. I am enough."

That is the whole practice in 30 seconds. It counts. It always counts.

You are not carrying this alone. — Danielle
